. Windows 8 does not recognize usb device Note that this drive was my former main drive on my Lenovo laptop, but suddenly became unbootable. Before blaming the poster for not solving all your problems, check your hardware first. Cheers and thanks, Rudy. Theres a lot out there. Can you please let me know any other alternative. Refresh the view by using the refresh task. Please tell me why and what must be done. I must use a USB hub. Reformat the drive with the newer NTFS file system or older FAT32 file system so Windows will be able to recognize it. Many times this could solve the issue. Also, there are some good format utilities out there that helped me solve the problem. Leave a comment and let us know what worked for you! What should I do in orden to at least retrieve all the important data I have on it? When I insert the usb flash drive, the computer recognizes it and says it is working correctly. The USB ports all work fine. If so what does it say? So is this just another of the many issues that Win 10 has yet to resolve? Hi Orville, when i connect my passport 1tb WD, its not showing the device under disk management. I dont want to format it as it contains extremely imp data. I had gone through each step on every advice page painstakingly, and the drive letter being assigned was the actual solution. My 2 drive enclosure plugs into the hub. Windows 8 does not recognize usb device I ve gt a seagatte 1tb hard disk which does not appear in My Computers Neither in disk managment neither in device manager. My external hard drive is nearly full and is readily recognisable on my Windows 8. My hard disk was formatted on Mac and it was not appearing on windows. The front USB has a tiny kit but has separated cables for two USB slots to connect on motherboard. Any solution for this problem?. Some will be modified to show usernames specific to the computer 8. The computer detects a usb thumb drive no problem though, it is just external harddrives.
